THE STATION BELONGS TO 6Y5WJ, JOSH. I TRIED TO DOUBLE THE FUN USING SO2R. FIRST TIME EVER FOR ME. MY HOME BREW SO2R SWITCH BOX WORKED, ALSO USED TWO 500-W AMPS AND DUNESTAR FILTERS. JUST LEARNING SO2R, I WILL NEED A LOTS OF PRACTICE BEFORE IT WILL BE MAKING A BIG DIFFERENCE. THIS CONTEST IS GREAT FUN, SINCE A GOOD STRATEGY IS NEEDED TO ACHIEVE HIGH SCORES. Lots of activity on 15M & 20M. Someone (no callsign given) asked me to QSY off the frequency because it was "reserved" for some obscure digital mode I hadn't heard of. I tried QRP in CQWW CW last year and had great fun. I have never seen 80m like it in all the years I have been a radio amateur. But this weekend in the WPX RTTY 80m was the complete opposite. Saturday and Sunday morning I was hoping to work some stateside stations, I heard plenty but none heard me. In fact, even the UK and European stations had a job to hear me. Luckily the band improved a little on Sunday evening to work a total of 50. Nearly all hunt and pounce bar 4. Will put in a better effort next year. Great contest...M3C. Chose to try my hand at a single-band operation as it fit into my radio weekend schedule. I've also been trying to work and confirm IA on 20m for some time and knew of at least one IA station that operates this contest, so was hoping to work him (NØNI). (And I did!) I was hoping for 500 plus Qs and a score above 200K. Two out of three goals met! It's somewhat tough going with a two-element tribander at 37-feet and 100 watts to attract much action calling CQ. I called CQ and S&Pd about 50/50 through the 16 plus hours on the air. Rates were about the same. I had one mini run that netted me 45 Qs in 42 minutes. After that, there was a lot of RX hiss in between CQ calls. Seemed like I worked all the stations in my layer of antenna and power that were on 20 meters. Saturday propagation seemed better than Sunday. Lots of flutter on EU Russia, JA's and SA. Mid afternoon Sunday while EU was still loud to my QTH, I ran across VK3JA with a strong signal with my beam to EU. There was a huge East Coast pile on him. I turned the beam to 240 degrees and the VK was just about gone. Long path it seems! Brought the beam back to the NE, VK3JA S9. Waited until the QRM from the masses calling died and slid my call in at the very end and bagged him! It was fun to play on just one band, to see how much damage I could do. Had lots of fun. Always appreciate the excellent job the CQ organization does in sponsoring these fun contests. 73 Gene, N9TF Operating conditions, K3S P3 100 Watts to TH2MK3 2 element tribander at 37 feet, N1MM+ MMTTY...N9TF. Rumors of the demise of the 10-meter band are a little premature. As usual 15 meters was the heavy lifter. My antenna on 80 meters really sucks and only provided a few Qs. In the past I've done really good in this contest. That was not to be this time. Still a lot of fun though...WO7V. This was another WQ6X remote event from NX6T. Unfortunately internet latency between NX6T and the SF Bay Area was HORRIBLE! Things settled down at 2335z to end the contest. It wasn't until then that Murphy finally went to bed.
